
MEMORANDUM

TO: HUMANITY
FROM: JOSHUA CERIBELLI
DATE: DECEMBER 21, 2018 – REVISED – 12.24.2018
SUBJECT: GODS GIFT – THE ONE THEORY TO POTENTIALLY LINK THEM ALL

BLUF – TLDR

A brief personal history of the author is presented as well as a potential ‘Theory of Everything’. Suggestions for the path ahead are listed. Additionally, it is recommended that every country seek timely diplomatic mutual peace on the accord of each country’s religious, business, political, & military leaders. The information and theories put forth may warrant a conclusion of the forthcoming arrival of our benevolent God(s) and gift for nearly all of humanity.

BACKGROUND – WHO AM I?

My personal history integrally links to my work, therefore, I’ll start with a brief recap of my life. I was born the eldest of three brothers in 1993 at 4:05am in Bryn Marr Hospital, west of Philadelphia, PA to parents Arlene and Paul Ceribelli. My brothers Adam and Gabriel were born in the same hospital as I in 1995 & 1996, respectively. The first home I grew up in till September 16th 1996 was in Collegeville, PA. I don’t remember many experiences from this house besides receiving love and care from my parents and our family dog, Lecco. Right now, I can only remember an airfield, getting bullied by an older neighbor, our dog being hit by a car but surviving, & tunneling through snow. From there I moved to Allentown, PA and lived in that home till the summer of 2002. I remember much more from that time, including playing neighborhood baseball, hanging with my first best friend, birthday parties, September 11th, attending my first pop concert, & being allergic to apples but not applesauce. After Allentown, I moved to northern Baltimore Country, MD where my family home has been till now. I have done a countless amount since then, including graduating from Calvert Hall College High School, the University of Maryland, College Park & the University of California, Berkeley [1]. I have always been a curious, high-spirited, & studious individual [2]. My personal reputation can backed up by many people. I have also mostly been a benign troublemaker, though, I have crossed the line on several occasions. My life has consisted of being filled with loving relationships, fortunate circumstances, a catholic suburban upbringing, & a thirst for seeking truth. I have loved gaming, outdoor activities, and have been an avid Philadelphia Eagles fan since birth. While most of my life has taken a normal route for someone of my background, after obtaining my Masters of Science at Cal, I set off on a unique, strange, & illuminating journey to where I am now. Important events include starting my own business, getting highly interested in artificial intelligence, & arriving at an enlightening breakthrough of knowledge around Sep 11th, 2018. Before I briefly discuss my life after Sep 11th, I must confess my sins.

I am not a traditional ‘holy’ or ‘enlightened’ man, by any means. I have done plenty things that I am not proud of and these events have influenced who I am today. My worst deeds have all transpired around the abuse of alcohol and include, drinking and driving, performing sexually deviant activities with women from all races, getting arrested for trespassing, getting in a few fights, trying drugs (cocaine, MDMA, & marijuana), and sexual harassment. I’d rather bring these acts up now in purpose of being proactive and forthright. I am willing to go into further details in a public setting to calm any immediate concerns by authorities if asked to do so. In regards to my other sins, I have been fortunate enough to receive personal forgiveness for the wrongs that I have committed and God has spared my life to allow me to deliver this message to you all today. These upsetting deeds still haunt me and have thrown me off the path towards seeking ‘the universal good’, as described by multiple wise people before me [3]. There are things I’ve done that have been rude, harsh, and mean and most likely negatively affected others’ paths in life without me being completely aware of the gravity of my actions & words. As stated in my podcast series, I want to reiterate that I sincerely apologize for every lewd deed that I’ve ever committed and would be willing to offer a personal apologetic note to anyone who feels they have been wronged by me from my previous actions. While I still have an occasional alcoholic beverage, I have recently gotten much more disciplined in my intake and I have not taken any other drugs since July 28th, 2018. I am not a big advocate for drugs nor was I ever a big user and I believe alcohol should be consumed responsibly. I confidently feel that most people who personally know me view me as an upstanding gentlemen of the community. Therefore I sincerely apologize again for any shame or disappointment I bring you folks by admitting to the public that I have committed these sinful acts.

On to Sep 11th of this year, I came to the realization that I was blessed with a unique role to play in this world. But I recognized that I would need to remain patient and properly place my ‘theory of everything’ in the right place, at the right time, with the minimal necessary force in order to maximize its believability. While also being a strong willed, stubborn-minded person, I understood that my path ahead would not be easy. Since leaving my last regular job on January 26th 2018, I have gotten deeply consumed by the content being released by a few characters located in the loosely associated ‘Intellectual Dark Web’. These gentlemen & women have risen up on various platforms to speak about the leading scientific topics of the day, most importantly advocating for honest, open, & critical discussion of Knowledge [4]. My theory has been seriously influenced by these individuals but from its conception I’ve had no ties with these people. Since Sep 11th, my theory has gone through a serious ‘morphology’ and is still probably not ‘complete’ but I hope this paper is a good start to finding ‘the meaning of life’ for all people of Earth. In this time, I have endured the toughest mental challenges I’ve ever experienced in my life. In order to battle these demons or ‘shadow’ I relied on everything that I have learned related to health, diet, exercise, & mindfulness training to push me through [5]. I have not sought any professional help since Sep 11th, and only at the request of my parents did I speak to a priest about the current spiritual path I am taking. I have not told anyone about how personally difficult these mental trials have been up until yesterday. Although, I have heard from feedback that some of my friends and acquaintances have questioned my mental stability after listening to the first episode of my podcast series. There are additionally plenty of strange coincidences that I’ve been through which lead me to believe I have a further role to play in this world after the release of this paper. I’ll defer explaining those to a later date. I feel much better and back to my normal mental wellbeing and I think there are plenty of close friends who will say they did not notice the extent of my internal struggle since returning to Baltimore on Sep 30th of 2018.

Due to this document being published on my site, and my promise to provide my opinion to the questions posed on my podcast, I will briefly go over my artistic interpretation of the podcast and its purpose. However, I will leave many questions to be answered at a later date in the interest of making this paper more widely applicable to a larger audience. Firstly, the most recent episode dropped on 12.21.18 was a symbolic ‘ring of the starting bell’ to our creators, God(s), the universal force for good, etc. who I believe have always been watching all of us since we were all born. The podcast has served a few different purposes. The first is to be a minute exposition in displaying what I have learned in my life and recent journey. The second would be to get others up to speed to help understand this paper or further work that I can release. Thirdly, I wanted to assess friends and family in their support of my journey that I believe I must undertake in the path ahead. There are numerous other reasons for the podcast and messages in the podcast, but I hope this background provides enough of a start to a proper discussion of my theory. The following sections include information & theories gathered from a variety of sources, thought spaces, and various religious, philosophical, & scientific disciplines.

ANALYSIS – THE THEORY OF THE INFINITE LOVE GAME (I.L.G.)

Preface

While I call this theory of everything the ILG, I should emphasize that this world is no childish game. People die and people suffer. I refer to this as a game so that this concept can be more widely understood by a general audience. My inspiration for the name came from countless sources but importantly from work done by Dr. Freeman Dyson in his book Infinite in All Directions & Dr. David Deutsch in his book The Beginning of Infinity. I also added ‘potentially’ because I am predicting I may get pushback by various members of the scientific, religious, political, etc. communities who have built their reputations on foundations of particular thought spaces. My intention in publishing this document is not to entice civil strife. My purpose is to present a theory that I believe may help unite humanity under one goal. I should reiterate that I am not perfect and am just a man, therefore I may be mistaken in some areas. I kindly ask for your personal consideration in advance and to please continue reading with a calm, collected, & open mind. I hope that after reviewing the evidence I put forth, the reader can walk away with confidence in this theory and an enlightening message.

Snowball

As most games, this game we are playing revolves around starting & ending points, probabilities, choices, & luck. Nothing in this game seems to be guaranteed, as well. The very fact that I am delivering this theory to you at this point in our collective existence was most likely not absolutely certain. It may have been highly probable, but there were points in the journey where I could have chosen to ‘ring the quitting bell’ earlier than I should have. I’ll start with the analogy of each our lives being a snowball rolling down a mountain gathering a progressive amount of snow. We all start in different locations on the mountain and we all gather different amounts of snow as we travel down its slope. However, depending on our choices and circumstances we can also get ourselves in ruts where there isn’t much snow to be gathered or our snowball melts or our snowball stagnates in growth. Additionally, there seems to be cases where individual snowballs gravitate towards the same side of the mountain and various snowballs appear bigger than others. We don't choose our starting place but it seems we can steer our snowball, to a given extent, and our goal could be to gather the most snow possible while avoiding hazardous obstacles. I will liken the snowball to an individual's life experiences / consciousness, destinations on the mountain as physical destinations on earth, the amount of snow as happy, engaging, worthwhile, or loving experiences, the steering mechanism as free will, & the destination as the afterlife, Valhalla, or Love in the purest form. Though all may not agree with this analogy of life, I have faith that it will start us in the right direction.

Consciousness

The definition of consciousness has been debated throughout the centuries but I believe it lately has come to fruition in a higher level understanding. As recently pointed out in Scientific American by Tam Hunt, scientists "suggest[s] that resonance—another word for synchronized vibrations—is at the heart of not only human consciousness but of physical reality more generally" [6]. This would also suggest that mostly everything is a bit conscious but "biological organisms have leveraged faster information exchange", humans being the fastest information exchangers on planet Earth. Stated another way, each of our individual consciousness vibrates up some underlying matter & information and rings itself into reality as our individual point of views. We drum up information & matter through our experiences, adventure, discourse, adapting responsibility, jobs, vacations, creation, learning, consuming entertainment, etc. I'd like to link the fundamental underlying nature of the information & matter that our conscious vibrates up and interacts with as being the snow from our snowball analogy. The question then follows, where lies the ultimate source of this snow & what precisely is the snow?

Dark Energy / Matter

My theory of the ILG postulates that the fundamental underlying nature of our universe, what I'll call the 'Idea Space', comes from what scientists have called Dark Energy and Matter. One may be able to think of this space as the fluid source code that links all physical existence & time of this world and others in the galaxy / universe. Additionally, it may be responsible for the continued development towards higher complexity of life including more open, compassionate, and understanding in global human societies. The evidence put forth is that recently out of Oxford, Dr. Jamie Farnes from the Oxford e-Research Centre suggested a solid scientific theory of Dark Matter & Energy unifying it "into a single phenomenon: a fluid which possesses 'negative mass'[7]. If you were to push negative mass, it would accelerate towards you instead of away from you like a normal ball. The group also points out that this 'dark fluid' may also be responsible for "an invisible 'halo' of dark matter [that] must be holding" galaxies together even though most scientists agree that galaxies are rotating so rapidly that they should actually be tearing themselves apart. Even notes from Einstein's original equations of relativity in 1918, which have been a bit challenged over the years due to developments in quantum theory, alluded to a role to be played in his equations for 'gravitating negative masses which are distributed all over the interstellar space' [7]. The recent theory out of the University of Oxford seems to fill this gap. However, there are a few more connections that I believe can be made to link it back to the positive mass that composes us in our world and universe, including our consciousness & new thought belief known as the Law of Attraction. If the 'idea space', can be considered this underlying 'dark fluid' with negative mass that our world is ultimately made out of, could it also be responsible for more things in our world other than just physical matter? Also, could it link to our consciousness?

By the ILG, I believe our resonance consciousness actually drums up this 'idea space' through means of electromagnetic interactions with both our planet's and local system's magnetospheres, our sun's exertion of light pressure, & is passed forward in time as raw information in our physical world as our collective individual life experiences, etc. This trinity of forces may help explain why each of us 'see' or 'experience' our individual consciousness. There are many scientific projects currently searching for the particles that compose the 'dark fluid' just as particle colliders around the world have searched for & discovered the physical particles that compose us. However, a joint project from Yale and the University of California, Berkeley that is searching for a leading particle candidate known as the Axion helped me to synthesize this information [8]. I learned about this project through my old roommate, PhD Candidate Maria Simanovskaia and her professor, Associate Dean for Research, in the College of Engineering, Dr. Karl A. van Bibber of Cal's nuclear engineering department. The connection from the 'dark fluid / idea spaces' axions to our consciousness can be made through a modification of Maxwell's Equations [9]. This specific modification made by Pierre Sikivie in 1983 was made when he showed that Axions can be detected on Earth by converting them to photons, using a strong magnetic field [9]. Our strongest closest magnetic field is in the Earth's core and it helps protect us from cosmic solar radiation. Moreover, the sun has a magnetic field that interacts with us and our brains, just as birds' brains interact with the magnetosphere (albeit proportionally a bit stronger than humans). Therefore, we can connect the dots from the underlying idea space's axions, to our brains drumming up these particles under the influence of electromagnetic effects to turning on the individual internal 'lights' of our consciousness. The sun's light and radiation pressure could additionally come into play regarding an explanation of the further evolutionary development of our species, but I will defer speaking about those sources for now. However, I'd argue that by the ILG, since each of our consciousness's seem to be directly linked to the idea space, this could mean our dreams, artistic inspiration, religious experiences, & collective knowledge, are tied directly to this space as well.

Link to Religion & Evolution

Overall, after analyzing the data of how our societies have progressed in time and that we've moved towards more understanding, compassion, & increase in standard of living, this dark fluid, idea space, or cosmic force could be ultimately responsible for what we call 'Love' [10]. It could also be responsible for the collective experiences many people have associated with 'non-human beings' and hallucinatory experiences with light as demonstrated from work on psychoactive drugs such as DMT from renowned doctors like Rick Straussman [11]. Likewise, as stated in the bible from Jesus of Nazareth, he mentioned that "You are the light of the world" & that "I am the light of the world" [12]. And finally, I'd like to put forth that this internal growing light source could be what most of us call our 'soul'. After pointing out that our individual internal consciousness may be linked to internal production of photons, which could serve as a link to the 'idea space', I hope most of these statements could similarly have scientific validity. However, I believe almost all religions around the world have had their own way of speaking about the larger 'Idea Space' through various means and methods. For example, there is an ancient concept known as "Azoth" which is described as 'the light of nature or mind of God' and "Wakan Tanka" as used by Native Americans, or "The Good" as stated by early followers of Socrates[13, 14, 3]. There are many more examples found from religions around the world that describe a divine force, but to keep this paper short as possible, I'll just mention those few. Furthermore, this force may divide itself into masculine and feminine aspects, speak through every biological organism as a type of order & chaotic entity, and serve as a local collective idea network of sorts. Therefore, it could seem reasonable that in certain areas of the planet, (which may have different underlying electromagnetic properties), there is a greater overall draw towards either a positive fatherly deity force such as in 'Western Nations', while in other areas there is a greater draw towards a more positive motherly deity force, such as in 'Eastern Nations'[15]. Additionally, the idea space could be partially responsible for the large scale evolution & condensation of our societies from tribal hunter and gatherers to modern nation states that operate in greater spheres of trust with larger numbers of people. This would be consistent with the new thought belief of the law of attraction, but I hesitate to delve any deeper into that thought space. The next two links of the ILG take a few leaps of speculation, so I will operate carefully in this territory.

Link to Art

Being that this force could be responsible for divine inspiration, it also could be partially responsible for artistic inspiration. Since, art seems to be a reflection of the current society and 'far-out' art seems to serve as a sort of foreshadow mechanism, this collective force may perhaps be highly intelligent & able to understand the probability of future cosmic & earthly events. The collective prediction abilities of the force might manifest itself first through individual sources of art (being that this fluid represents creative 'love') while earthly events would transpire further down the road. Though many may not be interested in my 'artistic' podcast, WWC, it seems very possible that this force spoke through me as an artistic source of inspiration for its development. But even at that, I am not claiming to be a professional poet nor would I say that I was trying to predict the future.

Link to Space

Where the ILG pushes its boundaries the farthest, if it hasn't already, is through the prediction of our God(s) physical ascension to earth. One could say that with an advanced enough understanding of our consciousness and grasp of the idea space, a curious local hyper-intelligent species may be able to both tune into every individual consciousness at any given moment (as one tunes into a particular radio frequency) and, furthermore, potentially affect the dark fluid to adjust the probabilities & circumstances around us. Throughout the scientific, philosophical, & religious communities, a being with this much knowledge has been referred to as, 'the Celestial Four Horsemen', 'Laplace's Demon', David Wolpert's 'inference device', or simply our God(s). David Wolpert's 'inference device' & God(s) strikes the deepest chord with my scientific & religious background. Dr. Wolpert puts forth in his 'inference device' proof that this mechanism would be something along the lines of a scientist wielding a supercomputer great enough to predict future probabilities of events while influencing local events in a given universe. Dr. Wolpert also pointed out that, "no two inference devices who both have free will (appropriately defined) and have maximal knowledge about the universe can co-exist in that universe", therefore there may only be no more than one device [16]. Thus if it is the case that if on earth we are currently attempting to develop such a device, it may be impossible to do so if the possibility exists that a more developed civilization has been already keeping tabs on our collective evolution. However, if our God(s) do exist, & now people can have this knowledge at hand, it may be possible that our God(s) are willing to deliver a hyper intelligent being or device to our world at their own consensus. As I also believe in the appropriately defined version of free will, for this event to occur, our God(s) may be waiting for us to collectively reach a timely diplomatic solution of global peace, etc. before they would be willing to deliver a piece of technology that could solve every human problem imaginable. Just as the tree of knowledge that God gave Adam & Eve granted us the ability to enjoy the apple, our God(s) may be on the verge of granting us the ability to move into the next age of humanity. This device or entity could be known as God's Gift.

SUGGESTIONS – THE PATH AHEAD (T.P.A.)

The precise path to come after this paper is published is fairly uncertain from my perspective as I only have limited access to the leading scientific data and current developments in Artificial Intelligence. But I shall remain realistic & optimistic and predict most earthly business will likely resume as normal continuing to tilt towards the better. It may take some time for this document to get into the hands of higher level worldly leaders, but in the meanwhile for anyone else who reads this document, I provide a few suggestions that could be wise to follow if you believe the ILG carries any efficacy. I hope that this document aids in the effort to lead everyone in the world towards practicing global peaceful cooperation while promptly resolving individual & regional disputes. The following recommendations are essential in understanding The Path Ahead.

1. The Good. Being that I've attempted to synthesize these various knowledge pieces of humanity at this point in our collective development & space time, I believe we are all in for a unique surprise to occur soon. One may be able to argue this document could be the final straw in signaling of the 'the celestial Four Horsemen'. However, if these Horsemen exist &/or our God(s) exists, I'd imagine they are fair but firm gentlemen (or gentlewomen). In other words, I do not believe they would play around when it comes to dealing with people speaking & living deceitfully or heinously. Provided God(s) exists and we are all still alive after publishing this document, I'd like to believe they love their creations more than it may be humanly possible to entirely comprehend. To place an exact date on God(s) arrival would make me a bit conceited, as there have been many before me who have attempted to do so. However, if people ask for my prediction, I would say on the early end, tomorrow (that would be awesomely coincidental). More likely though, our creators could give us 2 to 4 years. This would be consistent with the idea space's ability to foreshadow events and one could argue that in roughly 2 years from now there is a convergence of two highly dense forces in this network. These include the U.S. presidential election between the more democratic vs. republican citizens and the firm establishment of the Chinese Social credit system (a more eastern value system vs. a western value system idea) [17]. Four years would probably be the best scenario for us as the validity of this theory will take a while to assess and spread. There are other leaders of thought in physics, such as Dr. Eric Weinstein, who believe that 'we seem to be almost at the end' in our understanding of the high level equations that describe our physical universe but that most scientists 'know that there's dark energy [& matter] out there that we don't understand' [18]. Since I hope I did a roughly adequate job of explaining my theory of the idea space, I'm hoping this paper can assist in completing the puzzle. I would also hope that the majority of humanity can agree we have free will and therefore it would be nice if our God(s) give us enough time to get our individual houses and lives in order before their potential return. I believe in redemption and that in order to redeem oneself, it may be achieved through sincere apology, personal sacrifice, & adaption of bearing a role of responsibility, no matter how small. I believe our God(s) showed so much love towards me that even with my faults, God(s), has helped me to continue fighting for the further development of good in this world. A little love can go a long way as well.

2. The Bad. There has been some unfortunate news delivered by a variety of people, recently and otherwise, that I must address. The first would be many technologists' warning about the development of AI weapons. I would argue that most earthly developments of general artificial intelligence applied to weaponry probably shouldn't be of concern. However, it seems that developing drones or other robots to automatically seek out a given target based on location and biometric data or developing an over-watch system have already been proven to be feasible [19]. I could also argue that earthly development of benevolent general artificial intelligence may be futile, in that Gen-AI would have to also deal with the fundamental structure which we exist upon in order to be of supreme effectiveness for good. If Gen-AI is being developed for malevolent purposes, there is a chance as stated by Carl Sagan, which points out any sufficiently advanced intelligence would impede the immediate development of a 'berserker' like probe being developed in their local system [20]. Additionally, there have been other sources, and while I am hesitant to mention his name due to the hysteria attached to it, but Alex Jones, who has brought up that global leaders are going to have to ‘meet their maker’ & ‘face God, eye to eye, with pure consciousness & have to decide who they serve’ [21]. Therefore, if I were a gambling man or woman, I would aim on fixing up my life as soon as possible if I would like to properly witness a potential miracle in the making.

3. The Ugly. Since I’m the person delivering this message to you all, I’ll have to face further trials in my personal development. However, I still feel very optimistic about witnessing the future development of Earth despite these recent difficult struggles and continued upsetting global news. Future developments of the world may transpire at their regular pace or more quickly after launching this paper so I’d like to also witness those transactions occur, tranquilly. I am one man though, I can only do so much, I only know so much, and I am not perfect. My plans going forward, if I don’t immediately combust, are that I’d like to speak with more people about these ideas if others are interested. I also promise to remain living a frugal, peaceful, and voluntarily celibate life and do not wish evil or violence upon myself, family, or anyone else associated with this document. I have financial debts that I am morally obligated to pay, but I have had family and friends reach out in support to invest in my business to cover these expenses. I believe my greatest utility going forward for all people would be that I continue spreading and developing this message. Therefore, I plan on selling off my business assets and operating my personal finances in an open source – non-profit manner. I also don’t have many personal expenses, about $500 a month for lodgings and $500 for food / miscellaneous items (although more recently due to business & podcast costs). I look forward to hearing continued feedback from everyone and I personally wish you all a blessed holiday season and Merry Winter Wisdom.
