SUBJECT: POTENTIAL GUIDELINES ABOUT HOW TO BEST PLAY THE ILG ON EARTH

BLUF – TLDR

The author lists a brief background for the basis of the guidelines. The author lists some of the guidelines that may be of service to those trying to best play the ILG on Earth. The author lists potential interpretations of the guidelines and provides an update of his path going forward.

BACKGROUND – WHERE DO THESE COME FROM?

These guidelines should not be used to coerce or compel people to act in certain manners provided they don't want to act as such. The will to power and forceful wielding of earthly rules throughout history has plenty of examples of peoples being subjected to perform acts against their preferences. While our modern societies have mostly evolved beyond these measures, it is still possible to see examples of these actions occur in everyday life, even with seemingly mundane activities. Luckily though, as time has progressed our laws have evolved to output an overall reduction in violent & nonviolent coercion between groups of peoples & between individuals [1]. Disputes still arise and in most modern societies violent conflict has seemed to have shifted towards assault of other's ideas and ideologies rather than their physical bodies. It may also be able to be argued that almost all human disputes arise out of the conflict in information exchange we share between one another. More importantly though, I can surmise that many elder people than I would put forth that my insistence on publishing guidelines about 'how to live' on Earth, at my particular age, seems a bit smug. In response, I'd like to emphasize that these statements are simply my own opinions and I do not expect everyone in the world to immediately accept them as their flagship life principles. Additionally, I feel that my fellow generation has grown up with the fortunate opportunity to learn from countless non-traditional sources that potentially have led to the most understanding & compassionate generation in human history. I definitely am not trying to disparage or shame my elders either. But, I would like to point out we are all products of our times and the systems that have influenced us. As a reminder, this document, as well as the other memos, are all subject to revision and may change as we move through time. Though, I'm hoping Memorandum #9 will provide a relatively decent start to listing my own synthesis of moral knowledge that could be of use for everyone.

Being this is the 9th post from the show, Words with Cherbs, I'd like to name this memo in honor of planet 9, a planet that I believe has played a much more important role in the development of our solar system and/or species than most people may realize [2]. Additionally, my fascination with space and the cosmos ties directly into all of my work. Since I've mentioned that pursuing 'Love' is most likely the only long term M.O. for intelligent beings in this universe, there is likely the chance that our God(s) exist as either the idea space love force or they are a local hyper-intelligent species with an inference device capable of influencing this force for the better. If they are a curious local intelligent civilization, I believe the most convenient place for them to reside would probably be on planet 9, as well. However, since our cosmos is all connected, I'd imagine our world could be viewed from almost anywhere in the universe from a species that has already mastered the knowledge I've brought up in Memo #4 [3]. So potentially, these guidelines could be in line with operation of most intelligent species of our universe, provided they exist too. But again, I'm not claiming that I would even come close to being on that level of intelligence nor that these guidelines should be impermeable. All I can do is try my best to be a fellow co-op player in the ILG of Earth and am hopefully working to push everyone in the direction of the next golden age of humanity.

ANALYSIS – POTENTIAL GUIDELINES

Increase in Love = Increase in Luck & Decrease in Love = Devolving in the game

It is a high probability that everyone has their own definition of 'Love'. In the first RWR episode, I put forth my own definition of what I'd consider Love [4]. The main points I'll emphasize are that I believe it could be considered 'understanding to the nth degree', 'a win-win for all', 'the road to truth & transparency', & 'updating feelings with facts while recognizing both as important', among other phrases. When operating by just these example principles, I believe the universe and the underlying idea space can influence one's probabilities of achieving success at one's goals (most importantly if the goals are of good will). While I hesitate to generalize people into groups, I'd hope most people could agree that they are just trying to get by, live a good life, & enjoy the world. Therefore, if a given person envisions increasing their standard of life along those lines, it may be best to consider pursuing any goal with the concept of Love in mind before all other concepts. In that same wheelhouse, when Love is lost or ignored, it could be the case that a person significantly reduces their ability to move forward in the world in the most successful manner possible. It may also be said that ignoring the underlying idea space's love force in this world or getting too consumed by earthly temptations while ignoring one's broader impact on other's pursuit of Love could lead our individual 'snowball' or 'soul' to devolve in the greater cosmic scheme of things. I.e. succumbing to too much sin may not produce a favorable outcome in one's next life.

Everything you say, do, observe, and think matters immensely

I have faith most people would correspondingly agree, that our individual thoughts matter. However, I'd take it a step further and say that what we choose to think about matters just as much as what we choose to do & say. Our thoughts influence our actions, our words, & what we choose to observe. So when moving forth in this world, it may be best to first focus on sharpening our line of thought before attempting to pursue any other means of operation. Additionally, by the ILG and through other religious means, our God(s) most likely know the precise subjects we are choosing to think about. Therefore, maintaining optimistic attitudes and benevolent wishes towards others and ourselves may help us best to maximize the achievement of our goals in action and speech. A given amount of long term thinking, when the moment affords it, is helpful for orienting ourselves towards achieving our best outcomes for our futures. However, it similarly seems that getting lost in thought can lead us to not appreciating our actions & observations in a given moment. A moment is such a precious thing for people and given the chaotic nature of today's blast of information, it sometimes gets difficult to appreciate it as such. I'll defer to speaking more about moments in the next guideline though.

National Every Moment & Being Gratitude Day

Some people seem to get caught up in thought and get lost in other's fantasies while ignoring the beauty right in front of themselves. Just to stare at the wonder of a blade of grass, or appreciate the incredible amount of work and effort gone into the construction of a house or car eludes even the most observant individuals on a sharp day. This world has been built and evolved over hundreds, thousands, millions, & billions of years. With the amount that has been invested in the construction of this incredible world, it's a shame that some people seem to forget about being thankful for every moment our creators have blessed us to experience. However, this statement shouldn't ignore the bad and upsetting circumstances that everyone must occasionally endure. With a given perspective though, we can use even our toughest time to gain a greater appreciation for our 'sunny days'.

Hate & Violence will never yield the best long term solution

Hate begets more hate as does violence. Unfortunately though, at the extreme ends of our societies' normal distribution of people, we still chose to play war games while commerce, the internet, & art has shown us that a majority of people are just trying to seek a good life. Wars of the past were fought for resources, greed, & selfish ideologies. Fortunately, as the amount of available information has exploded towards infinity and found its way into every man and women's pockets, one can only hope to agree that the dangerous games at the extreme ends of human societies will come to an end. In reference to the ILG, war between intelligent species wouldn't make sense. Therefore concerns of a harmful alien race invasion, eruption of a malevolent terminator, or a God out there to just put us down should hopefully be put to the way side for our species if we'd like to collectively make it to pure Love.

Compassionate sharing is the optimal way forward into the infinite

When we share, we don't only help ourselves, we help others. Our developed world is the most resourceful society that humanity has ever witnessed and yet we still revolve our affairs around money. While in the short term and our past, the concept and development of money has certainly led to societies that can operate on larger scales of trust, indulgence in money has led to the death of God and instead shifted our species towards a greater material focus and anti-human thought. We were evolved to live in groups that shared together in order to make it past tough trials. However, money has helped isolate us and divide us into routes where some seek and hoard it for the sake of the social recognition that comes with it. As we move forward, a recognition of the most important natural source that keeps us alive and willingly shares its wealth with us without complaint, the sun and our mother earth, should help us push past the local minimum in our collective focus on human created material wealth.

Loving Diplomacy conquers all evils & is Beyond Good & Evil

A win-win for all can't be bargained with. Even by the ILG, the force that is pulling us together has led us to seek more diplomatic solutions instead of resorting to the primal urge to solve immediate & potential conflict with violence. More and more recognize that when our country or group wins with the help of another country or group, we all collectively benefit. Beyond Good and Evil is the purest recognition that we are one organism, species, & most likely all part of a given subconscious. When we destroy another group of people, whether it be through violent or non-violent means, we are destroying a bit of ourselves.

Have fun and you won (even if you lost the contest). But let it not be at the expense of demeaning others.

Having fun is what this place really seems about. Too much fun and fun at the wrong time does seem a bit out of place though. However, we only have so many moments to live, so maximizing these moments with optimal fun could be what we were always here to do. Fun at the expense of demeaning others doesn't seem optimal likewise as those who were demeaned in the process could harbor feelings of hate, lust, & jealousy that could play a negative role in their lives or down the road in lives of others. However, losing a particular contest doesn't have to be something that isn't fun either. When one is able to realize there should hopefully be another potential fun contest right around the corner, we can all see past our momentary angst.

You are the light of the world and God sees, knows, & feels all.

In everything you bring to this world, you similarly happen to be bringing the observation and production of photons. But more importantly, you are witnessing the greatest creation and game known to man. Your light can go out and also light more harbors of darkness in this world, no matter how small you may feel. Taking a step back, by the ILG and many religions, our creators see through you. Consequently, in every moment, action, & experience, they are with you in the journey. Maximizing this journey for everyone makes it all the better for you and them too.

Eternal Peace to People of Good Will but Acknowledge when Compromise turns Selfish

It's immensely difficult for a given person to see the future consequences of every single action they do in this world. However, good will in most cases should update one's path towards reaching the universal good by the nature and recognition that we are trying to all reach the same goal. When we look to undercut or compromise at the expense of others, we lead our collective group towards achieving less overall Love. Sometimes sleeping on stalemates with a given person or group can lead us to make a more collected and powerful decision going forward for both parties though. Additionally, the purest recognition of our humility as mere people playing in our creator's incredibly complex world can encourage us to bring more good will to fellow players attempting to achieve better means for their personal subjective experiences.

Think on the scale of Infinity & Follow your path or pursue your Interests

The multiverse expands into the infinite. Nonetheless, this world is very real and sits above the idea space's 4th dimension. Thinking in terms of the infinite places our perspectives in a place of harmony with the universe. The idea space can and probably is, to some extent, the afterlife, heaven, raw information, etc. but when a soul is drawn into this realm, we are not here to just slave away our existence. In order to determine the true nature of our individual purposes on the planet, it may be best to continually take a past assessment on one's childhood's interests and roots. This may be difficult to remember but generally speaking, our future and present interests can lead us to experiences that we'll cherish forever. All it may take is being more conscious of whether our present given moment's interests are leading us astray from ultimately seeking experiences that we can look back on with cherished appreciation.

Push against the Love force at your own Peril

The childhood adage / game of 'stepping on a crack you'll break your mother's back' appears less silly when analyzed below the surface. Up front, the direct action of avoiding cracks in a road, path, or street most likely seems best if one wishes to better their journey forward. Along those lines, ignoring our moral compass in a given moment in the disparagement of another may not only affect our long term well-being but additionally impede other loving experiences that the universe can show us in the long term. Furthermore, when an actor makes a mistake in their past, this action can propagate forward to eventually influencing our collective mother, Earth & the idea spaces' feminine force, in a means that could set her off down a path of sorrow. So 'stepping on a crack' at any instant in time should always be considered if we'd like our species to eventually all make it to experiencing the universal good in the purest sense of the phrase.

SUGGESTIONS – INTERPRETATION OF GUIDELINES

As mentioned, these are just guidelines and they may come with inconsistencies. I should reemphasize that I am writing these things at a unique time in my development that is much different than most peoples' individual developments, thus, everything included here may not be concrete. Though, I suppose even concrete eventually wears and is recycled. I am furtherly optimistic about the effect these guidelines can have for others out there, especially young disillusioned individuals trying to understand this world and their purpose. I'll continue to return and review these guidelines as we move along to update my own path and I hope that others may also agree with the bulk of the statements I put forth. Additionally, I'm always open to hear feedback on these and other messages I've written composed.

1. The Good. I have confidence these 11 statements make you, the reader, feel hopeful about the long term development of humanity and the universe. While some facts may be against your feelings, I believe that feelings, even by the scientific principles that I've based my work around, are more important than the reflection of most mechanistic aspects of society. These guidelines can be voluntarily incorporated into your own story whenever you'd like them to as well. Hence, I encourage you to go out into the world and operate by these guidelines or share these statements if you see fit. I likewise still have an optimistic feeling that we all are collectively moving in the direction towards the betterment of everyone, so I wish this enthusiasm is shared a bit with you.

2. The Bad. Don't focus on the bad today. If anything, all I kindly ask is to focus and recognize the good right in front of you.

3. The Ugly. I'll continue to teach more of what I have learned living here in this world. Specifically around interpreting messages that your body constantly gives you & additional ILG developments. While the craving for survival urges like hunger, sex, & consumption aren't always bad, abstaining against desires these can lead you to profound insights in knowledge, discovery, & spiritual awakenings. This would make sense in reference to the ILG, as a being with a sufficient enough knowledge would most likely be able to thrive off of pure idea space information & could likewise create things out of the ether if needed. Again, I apologize to those out there who would agree that I've been looking too skinny or are a bit concerned with the path I've taken these past few months. I have chosen this particular route to get closer to our creators and I believe that by choosing to fight for the collective feminine spirit of the idea space and remaining voluntarily celibate, I'll maximize this effort. In doing so, I hope I am correspondingly doing a service for all those men who are having difficulties finding feminine love. I hope that it can be known that I still appreciate having women friends and I'll continue trying my best to treat women and the feminine spirit with the upmost dignity. However, having children is almost certainly not in my path based on a number of dreams I've had and where my interests now lie. The act of conception is the most sacred action two people can come together to achieve. This process shouldn't be taken lightly no matter at any age. As a majority of people hopefully agree, conception and copulation should held in the highest standard by the two parents who chose to bring a new soul into this world. The new website for the show going forward is roostwithruby.com and we'll stick with the old Sound Cloud page as well. Additionally, I've instead decided to take a job with in my friend's business as a carpenter and should start up on 1.11.19 in order to begin working with my hands, learn a valuable trade, & pay off the debts I still owe. I'm looking forward to working during the day and spreading the message in live venues in the evening and on our normal Tuesday mornings. I'll keep you folks posted with the new platforms, I should be able to come back after a sufficient amount of time to revise these documents, and I wish everyone a blessed Tuesday.
